I claim

1. An encapsulation of a predetermined amount of toothpaste, not exceeding a single, serving amount, whereby an individual can have a sufficient supply of toothpaste, to brush one's teeth.
2. An encapsulation that has a dispensing end that shall rupture when squeezed from its opposite end , thus expelling its supply of toothpaste onto the users toothbrush.
3. A hollow encapsulation that can be filled with a measured supply of toothpaste , which is in a single serve form, causing the user to dispose of the encapsulation after using it one time.
